

HEAD LINERS

From the Desk of Jeff Raymond....

Unique Liners

A good majority of our liners are for typical rectangular tanks. Sometimes there can be common extras like outlets, sumps, or overflow areas. However, even unique or difficult tank sizes and shapes can be accommodated with Witt liners.

Recently we made a very unique liner for a metal finishing customer. Besides the tank itself, there were two divider walls running most of the length and two divider walls running across the width of the tank.

The liner was made in one complete piece with all four divider walls built into the liner. There were also two drains on each end of the tank built into the liner. Once the liner itself was built, it was installed into the tank in about twenty minutes.

On each end of the tank there were six holes. These holes were aligned with holes in each divider wall across the width. Once on site the holes were fitted with bulkhead fittings to allow process pieces to pass through and into the tank. Because these bulkhead fittings are prone to leaking, the drop in liner was hot air welded and bonded to the tank at these points making for a leak free connection.

The innovations brought to the lining industry by Witt Lining Systems grow out of a history and partnership with traditional bonded linings and the skilled workmanship that bonded linings require. Our experience with those skills and abilities allows us to continue to be innovative with drop in liner development and applications as is featured with this unique lining application.

Did you know?

In 1647, the English parliament passed a law that made Christmas illegal.

Christmas festivities were banned by Puritan leader Oliver Cromwell, who considered feasting and revelry on what was supposed to be a holy day to be immoral. Anybody caught celebrating Christmas was arrested.

The ban was lifted only when the Puritans lost power in 1660.
